

As a law abiding, licensed, gun owner I feel that all the actions being take are nothing more than knee jerk reaction to the horror that occurred in Newtown.

I do not believe that any further gun control will stop something like that from occurring again. GUNS DON'T KILL, it's the people behind the gun that kill, Cars don't kill, it's the people driving them that kill. It's not the honest law abiding citizen that kills, it's the the sick (mentally), the down and out and people with total disregard fro human life that kill.

Limiting the number of bullets a magazine holds will do nothing. I understand the shooter in Newtown was changing magazines before he used all the rounds in each one. I can change a magazine in a matter of seconds so what difference does it make if I have one 30 round magazine or six 5 round magazines! What difference does it make what the rifle looks like? Looking like a military assault rifle doesn't make it one. Lawmakers and the media call the AR-15 an assault rifle. It is NOT! It can fire only one round at a time when you pull the trigger, therefore making it no different than any other semi-automatic weapon sold. One trigger pull, one shot. Plain and simple.

The only people that will be impacted by any further gun control will be people like me, law abiding gun owners. I don't have a problem with doing deeper background checks or selling ammo to only a licensed, either carry permit or hunting license, individual. I do oppose limiting the magazine size, publishing list of gun owners to the public, requiring me to renew my license every year, raising taxes on ammunition, limiting what I can purchase, guns and ammo, of any type in a certain time frame, and anything else that imposes on my second amendment rights.

The bottom line is gun control won't stop what happened in Newtown and therefore I strongly oppose any new gun control bills.
